

The Nehemiah Process

The Nehemiah Process provides the strategic framework necessary for the implementation of the diocesan Vision and Mission.

The Nehemiah Process is a process to guide church leadership teams for prosperous measurable results accomplished through education and other resources to improve, grow, and make disciples for the dynamic ministry of the church.

The Nehemiah Process is a covenant relationship between congregations and the entire diocesan family of the diocese of Southeast Florida. It involves long term commitment to discernment, training and implementation of a ministry plan for congregational growth, focusing on both reaching out to those without a faith community and nurturing growth with the parish membership to discipleship.

Since it began in 2003, more than 50 congregations have participated or are involved in the process.
